January 30, 2560 BC â€” How to solve this problem in one of my programs? It does not affect the program itself. The program runs and collects data I. D.A. - Why can't you transfer data using the point-to-point protocol? A. It doesn't work like that. It does not give us any information about what data we received and what data we sent. It's just a stream of bytes. If I can make it so that the program can collect data using the point-to-point protocol, that would be great. B. What about the point-to-point protocol and the Internet?

A - The Internet is simply too widespread. This is no longer a widespread problem.
