The goal of this game is to help the player fulfill a romantic dream. Basically, the player can play through different levels of this game by completing several tasks. Gameplay: In the game, you will find a dress which is used as your character. You will need to determine how to use it, as it is limited in what you can do with it. The character can use the dress as: - A mirror to look at the world, and an object to change the background scene. - An item for picking things up. - An item which can place the player and her dress in a piggyback status. The main purpose is to help the player go faster by hopping on her dress. - An item to help the player jump To change the background and to look at the world, you will need to hit the arrow buttons on your controller, or press the L and R buttons of your controller at the same time. To pick things up, you need to use the dress as a base, and then tap the controller's A button. The player must use the arrow buttons to hover over the desired object and then press A to pick it up. To jump, you will need to press the Y button on your controller and then press A. To activate the piggyback status, you must tap the controller's Right Stick button. To

is a 1987 action/adventure/rpg beat 'em up video game developed and published by Tiger. It was the second title released for the Nintendo Entertainment System and the first title in the Tiger series to be released in the West. Gameplay Gameplay occurs between the fictional world of the Tiger Fighter game universe and the player's own world. Players take on the role of Tiger Ram, a cyborg gorilla and self-proclaimed super hero who seeks to fight five evil bosses. The gameplay consists of beating up bosses and collecting special items in a beat-em-up style game, which Tunes of Danger calls "Mixing together elements of arcade and puzzle solving, the player has a number of different moves, such as jumping, kicking and punching. However, the player cannot always use his full range of attack. A number of items found throughout the game assist Tiger Ram in his pursuit. These items range from basic shields to powerful offensive and defensive devices such as side-sparklers, bomb-launchers and RPG missiles. There are also radar balls that change color and allow the player to see enemies who are in their line of sight. Using these items, Tiger Ram can perform a variety of attacks and environment manipulation. The player's Tiger Fighter is equipped with a 9mm pistol in addition to many of the weapons that can be obtained throughout the game. Once the player's goal is reached, the game enters the Tiger's boss stage where the five remaining bosses show up to fight. Each boss has their own standard attacks and special moves. All bosses must be defeated for the game to be completed. The game ends when the player has defeated the final boss. A second ending awaits the player if they are able to beat the final boss, Gil, without collecting many of the items. Story Plot During the course of the game, the cyborg gorilla Tiger Ram finds out that scientists from the North Prime Scientific Branch are experimenting on gorillas, giving them robotic limbs that are similar in appearance to those Ram carries. Ram, with the help of Rover, his walking pet robot, and Lt. Dick Funtlesworth, Chief of Police, takes part in fighting and stopping the scientists. After the completion of the game, Tiger Ram is determined to find the missing scientist, Dr. Mabugai. As expected, Dr. Mabugai is not found. He received a minor wound during a battle with one of the scientists. To save his life, Dr
