So, once you've installed the software, what should you do? Make a Plan for Using Photoshop

Most professionals spend some time planning how to use Photoshop. The first step is to have an idea of what you're going to do. Once you know what you want to do, think about your strategies. Start by selecting the appropriate tool and then plan which process you want to accomplish. The more processes you try, the more you'll learn about how Photoshop works. If you really want to learn the most, open up an image and try to manipulate each tool. Find out which types of images you're best suited for using certain tools. For example, I can use a lot of the same tools on textured illustration, large illustrations, and photography. As you improve, you'll learn even more about your own images. If you're new to Photoshop, try to learn as much as possible, but don't go overboard. You'll learn by doing and gaining experience.

Learn the Basics of Photoshop

The main tool in Photoshop is the Layers and Masks panel. Layers are the organizing structure for the image you'll be editing. Each image is comprised of multiple layers. The bottom layer is the background, and Photoshop adds the black background automatically. To easily add a layer, click on Layer > New > Layer. To delete a layer, click on Layer > Layer Via Path > Edit Contents. To create a mask, either paint with the paint tool or type in a number in the mask box. Setting a layer as mask with the Rectangular Marquee Tool. Typing in numbers to mask out specific layers. When you drag, push, or otherwise move a layer, a white box will follow it around. The rule is that the further you move the layer, the larger the white box. If you move the cursor over the black background, the original image will be painted.

Readers' comments I agree with the author. What are we paying £70 a month for? Information? News? Video? News stories? I look at these sites and can barely find anything of interest. At the end of the day, all the news is going to be biased or corporate owned anyway. I was going to write a response on the BBC site, but how can you ask for a refund? I was expecting something a bit more informative and informative than the non-stop BS we are getting now. I used to watch the BBC but got so fed up of hearing about the same issues and having the same "experts" pontificate on them daily. Finally in early 2004 I switched to watching RT, even though I lived in the UK. I've never looked back. If you're looking for unbiased, informative, and interesting news, you won't find it anywhere else - including on the BBC, alas. I totally agree with this author's take on the BBC. I'd like to add two points. Firstly, the author compares the BBC to the RT in order to emphasize how biased the BBC really is. I disagree with this comparison. Russia Today just covers whatever the United States is up to, just like the BBC does. They both focus on the United States and Russia for no other reason than those are the big powers in the world and therefore there's more coverage on them. But how different are they really? In the first place, RT often presents what the BBC does in the morning, while the BBC often broadcasts RT's news in the evening. Now that's obviously a different channel, but the aim and purpose of both is the same. Secondly, I agree with the author in that the BBC has been slowly breaking down. The news is boring and full of sound bites without any depth. Many of the BBC's success stories have gone down the drain, such as the Beeb's sports coverage that died down when Sky overtook it in the UK because people wanted more substance in their sports coverage. Similarly, when the BBC realized that everyone in the US was watching The Simpsons via the Internet because the show itself was so successful, and that only a fraction of the populace was actually watching it on television via the BBC, the BBC scrapped the show. The same goes for the much maligned comedy series, Room 101, in the last year or so, as the show appeared to be the only one that was drawing high ratings. To be fair, though,

Quick Search Variation on a Theme Orange, Pumpkin and Chocolate: Delicious Surprise In this variation on our winner, a deep bath of chocolate, deep orange and spicy pumpkin make a backdrop for elegant fig, with nutmeg adding a burst of warmth. A subtle herb line in the praline scones brings a welcome kick to the savoury theme, and a sprinkling of nuts on top of the scones brings in a bit of much-needed texture. Ingredients 150 g unsalted butter 200 ml milk 1 vanilla pod, split in half lengthways 300 g icing sugar 3 eggs 125 g plain flour 1 tsp baking powder 250 g Butternut/pekie pumpkin (or other winter squash), peeled and cut into 1 cm cubes 6-8 drops amber or orange food colouring 1 tsp cocoa powder 4 tbsp milk 2 tsp pumpkin pie spice 1/2 cup toasted or blanched hazelnuts praline 2 eggs 2 tbsp milk 50 g caster or granulated sugar 150 g unsalted butter 250 g icing sugar 50 g almond meal 20 g chopped pistachios Toast the hazelnuts in a dry frying pan over a medium heat for about 5 minutes, or until they start to turn golden. Set aside to cool. We recommend that you use a garlic press, and it will allow you to create a smooth paste that you can use for the scones. If you don't have one, just crush the cloves roughly using the side of a knife. Preheat the oven to 180°C. Bake the scones for 18-20 minutes or until the top is just starting to turn golden. Meanwhile, prepare the praline. Cream the eggs and sugar in a stand mixer on high speed for 5-7 minutes. Meanwhile, place the butter and icing sugar in a saucepan and set it over a medium heat. Stir gently until the butter has melted and the mixture is smooth. Stir in the almond meal, then add the eggs, beating constantly until smooth. Turn the heat to low and stir in the pumpkin pie spice. Pour the mixture into a piping bag with a 2 cm piping tip and pipe the praline onto a sheet of baking paper. Lay it flat on the tray
