edius provides a number of useful features that you wouldn't expect in an inexpensive application, such as very flexible metadata tagging and automatic tag creation from captions and titles. you can tag your clips according to the type of shot (say, a sports broadcast), the type of event (a wedding or a funeral), the type of camera (prosumer digital or dslr) and so on. if you've got the pro-y gear, you can record metadata directly onto the tape. the list of tags you can create is limited, but there are some of the industry standard ones available. these can be created using the tags pane on the right-hand side of the timeline. hey, i've got a slight problem. i loaded the original, raw video into edius 5 and the luts. the thing is that when i use the multicam, it loads the videos into the cinepak, and the colors are all washed out and distorted. i have no idea why this is happening. any help is appreciated. thanks. hi, i have been using the lut/exported files method to load images into edius. it has worked fine for me until now. i have a time lapse video and it seems that edius is trying to load the images as clips rather than just editing it. this has resulted in edius freezing on me, so i had to reboot it. it still didn't fix the problem. i just downloaded edius 5 and i am trying to figure out the best way to use it. i am using it for my first movie ever. i have a canon xti and all my footage is stills. i have a vimeo account and i have loaded my footage into edius. when i try to add clips to the timeline, it tells me that the file is not supported. i am confused as to what i should do. any advice would be greatly appreciated.
