A: The reason why the auto-renew works and then doesn't after I reinstall the app and reactivate the subscription is that in the settings of the 'Subscription' the 'Manage App Settings' is unchecked. The app installs the app on the iPad (properly) and then when I go to reactivate it, it's not handling the settings and the subscription keeps renewing.

Q: Use struct pointer as pointer to a function and call its member My question is not about structs, classes or calling a member function of a struct via a pointer.

#include using namespace std; struct vettore { string nome; double punti; }; void
aumentaPunti(vettore *v) { v->punti += 5.0; } int main() { vettore v; string nome; double punti;
v.nome = "Nome"; v.punti = 12.0; aumentaPunti(&v); cout punti += 5.0; }

You need to take a reference here: void aumentaPunti(vettore& v) { v.punti += 5.0; }

Because you are modifying a value-type and you need to use the & operator to point to a reference-type. Also, it would be better to use templates, like this: template void aumentaPunti(V& v) { v
